These episodes will only be broadcast on Seattle radio station KIXI and they will be available for listening on the Imagination Theatre YouTube channel

SERIES BACKGROUND:

The initial Jim French Seattle radio series was a short-run anthology series called The Tower Playhouse. The series name came from the fact that the KVI studios were in the Smith Tower Building.

The 1972 through 1978 Jim French radio programs were the major contemporary component of a mix of radio programs that also included mainly shows from the Golden Age of Radio that were aired on KVI during much of the 1970's. These Radio shows were aired nightly under an "umbrella title" that was called The KVI Theater Of The Mind. Jim's shows were generally aired on Thursday nights. At the time, KVI was part of the Golden West Radio Network: KMPC - Los Angeles, KSFO - San Francisco, KEX - Portland, and KVI - Seattle. The Golden West Radio Network was owned by radio's singing cowboy, Gene Autry

SERIES DESCRIPTION:

The shows in this anthology series covered a wide-range of genres: science fiction, the supernatural, espionage, crime and even a western. In general, The Tower Playhouse was similar to French's later series: Crisis.

Most of the performers in the series were staff members of KVI and not professional actors. In addition to being the director, producer, and writer for the series, Jim French also acted and functioned as the announcer/narrator.
